WHAT IS REFORMER PILATES?

Reformer Pilates is a Pilates method that uses an apparatus known as the Pilates Reformer. While the equipment might look odd at first, the Reformer is an incredibly versatile piece of equipment, whether you're rehabbing an injury or wanting a head-to-toe workout. Invented by the German Pilates Method founder, Joseph Pilates, in the 1920s, the Reformer machine was – true to its name – built to 'reform' the body. This piece of specialist equipment consists of a bed-like frame with a sliding platform or carriage and a system of springs, pulleys and ropes. The carriage moves on wheels back and forth within the frame, with the adjustable springs at the foot of the bed creating varying levels of resistance. Reformer Pilates is available on the VIP Gold Membership at Strand Fitness Southside.

WHY YOU'LL LOVE REFORMER PILATES

Full body workout (low impact, but high intensity): Using a Reformer to perform specific, individualised movements will give you a balanced, full body workout. The subtlety of the springs on a Reformer, globally strengthens the whole body to not just target the large muscle movers, but also activate the smaller stabilisers. Where there is uneven weakness, you are also able to work unilaterally to focus on and correct imbalances.

Builds strength and tones muscles: Reformer Pilates allows you to move through full range while working on strengthening muscles. This dynamic form of exercise cleverly uses the machine's springs and levers to create resistance and allow for equal focus on the concentric and eccentric contractions to create long, lean, toned muscles. It not only targets major muscle groups, but also the small stabilising muscles are called to action when working on a reformer machine.

Improves core and posture: Many of the exercises performed on a Reformer machine target the core whilst working the peripheral postural muscles at the same time. A stronger core is essential for ideal posture.
